STALKING/DATING VIOLENCE/DOMESTIC VIOLENCE. For the 2014 Annual Security Report, the Department of Education asked institutions to make their “best efforts” to include statistics for these new crime categories. This report uses the definition of Stalking and Domestic Violence as defined by Washington State law (RCW). Dating violence includes crimes where the victim and suspect were, as self-defined, in a dating relationship where that relationship does not fall under domestic violence definitions per Washington State law. Relationships falling under the Washington State definition of domestic violence are counted in this report as domestic violence and not as dating violence. This means that most crimes are counted in this report under domestic violence and not under dating violence. These statistics were collected from police case reports received by the Seattle Police Department and also include incidents reported to other Campus Security Authorities. For stalking cases, the College records the initial report as one incident, showing a pattern of behavior regardless of the year(s) in which the behaviors took place and regardless of the whether the behaviors took place in multiple Clery-reportable location(s) or involved multiple violations of the law. If additional reports of stalking are made by the same victim with the same suspect, these reports, if they involve a violation of the law, are counted separately regardless of whether the violation took place in the same calendar year or not. A new act of stalking is determined to have occurred if the behavior takes place following the initial stalking report and if that behavior is determined by law enforcement to be a violation of the law.

Crime Statistics: Clery Data

The following annual security report provides crime statistics for selected crimes that have been reported to local law enforcement or to campus security authorities (CSA). The statistics reported here generally reflect the number of criminal incidents reported to the various authorities. The statistics reported for the sub-categories on liquor law, drug law and weapons offense represented the number of people arrested or referred to campus judicial authorities for respective violations, not the number of offenses documented. The reports comply with 20 U.S. Code Section 1092 (f).
